Glossophagian or nectar-eating bats use their echo-location system to search for flowers with nectar even in the absence of light.

Some flowers only open their petals at night, with the bat being its most important pollinator. This example of a symbiotic reproduction-food relationship is part of the magic that can be observed on a night tour. Like the bat, much of the biodiversity of the rainforest has nocturnal habits.

Their adaptations have allowed them to survive in a world without light, obtaining advantages over their competition for food-gathering, and protecting them from their light-dependent predators

Frogs with charming sounds and colors, sloths, insects, and even snakes can be enjoyed at this wonderful rainforest night party.

We pick up our clients at the hotels at the specified time to take the pathway that will take us to one of the most important agriculture zones in Costa Rica: the Northern Plains. We drive for about one hour to get to the Indigenous reservation set by the government, in this reservation we find three Maleku communities known as El Sol, Margarita and Tonjibe. We will visit Tonjibe community where we will meet a local family, which as the rest of families had to adapt themselves to a new life style to survive and keep their traditions and culture intact, because their ancient life style it is against the new environmental government laws such as their homes materials, their diet and medicines; but even so they are working on to preserve the most of their traditions such as their language, dances, diet, dressing, and the use of natural medicines.

That is why they are opening to tourism for visiting their homes to watch their life style and also by selling their handcrafts; this cultural encounter involves a visiting to one of their traditional houses, a walk thru their graveyards to know how they used to bury their family members in the past; also we will walk thru a botanical garden where they get their medicines from different plants that they use; and a performance of one of their traditional tribal rituals to end with a typical Maleku lunch. After that we get back to the hotel.

After a short 35 minute drive, we will arrive at the incredible area designated for reforestation that lays beside the Mendez Family farm, in La Tigra, San Carlos, near the mountains of the Children´s Eternal Rainforest, which is registered as the largest private reserve in Central America.

Here, we will walk a short trail to observe the rainforest of the region and in hopes of discovering tinamu, anteaters, coatis, morpho butterflies, several species of birds, and much more. Afterwards we will continue on to visit the farmed portion of the land, where we will meet the family and learn about their lifestyle, customs, traditions, and farming method.

We will visit their black pepper, vanilla, yucca, coffee, banana, corn, and other plantations which are traditional to the region. Finally, we will enjoy a delicious authentic Costa Rican lunch, prepared on a wood-burning stove, with some of the finest organic products cultivated on the farm. After lunch, we will head back to La Fortuna.

You could say that the sloths are one of our emblematic animals of the fauna of Costa Rica. These small and gracious friends are particularly beautiful, owners of a tenderness with an eternal smile that makes it seem that he is always happy. Well, apparently, they are very happy because nothing stresses them.

We invite you on a short hike through the secondary forest as we search for them. On this special pathway -designed for the entire family- it is very common that we can find these little green mammals, even if they try to blend in with the flora. Our expert guides know their secrets so they do not hide for very long. In addition, we can enjoy many fabulous plants that will teach us curious facts. Because of its location and type of flora, this trail is very diverse in birds as well as sloths. Get your camera loaded and ready! Recommended only for sloths and bird lovers!
